

bull dogs , cachorro lobo e labrador

Por: xavier

digite aqui

The Czechoslovakian Wolf dog develops a strong social relationship not only with their owner but also with the whole family. Even they admit the privileged position of children and leave them as the dogs do not allow certain actions to adults or other dogs. Learn to live with other pets that already belong to the family, however, meet animals unknown problems may occur.

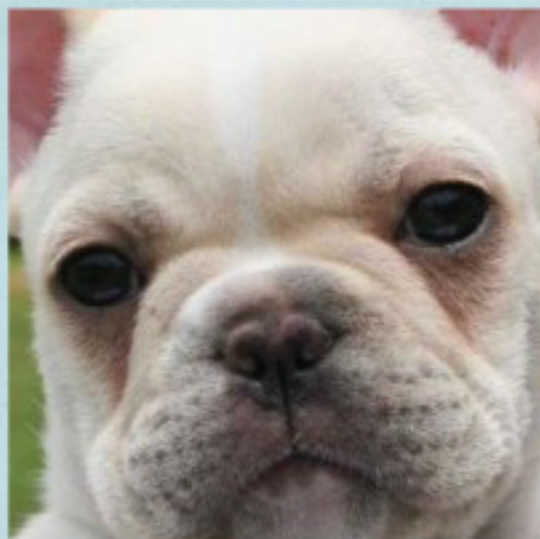

It is important to master his passion for hunting when cachorros.O puppy should not be isolated in a kennel. Must be accustomed to different environments, travel, etc Bitches are easily controllable. Dogs often have a stormy growth. The Czechoslovakian Wolf Dog, is very playful and emotional. Learns with ease. It is more admirable for its versatility than by specialization. However it is not expected that trains spontaneously. The behavior of the wolf is fundamentally Czech goal.

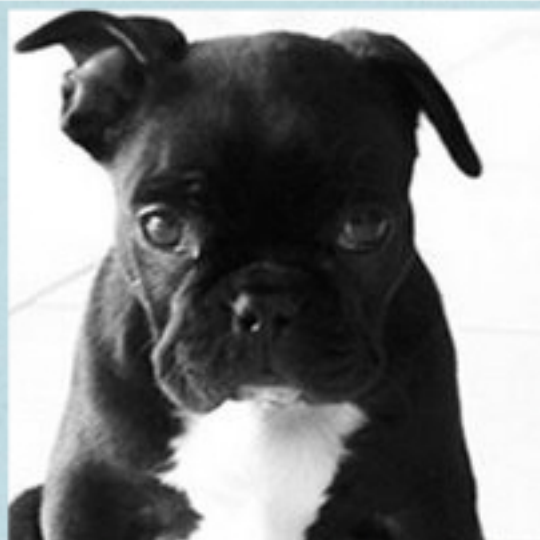

digite aqui

Despite his wild appearance and behavior more suited to living among the European breeds of dogs-wolves are unpopular, currently there are about 3000 copies of the two races together, while the wolf-dogs first generation totaling over 300 thousand just in USA.

link:<http://www.seucachorro.com/caes-lobo> quite right, although I know that until the mid-eighteenth century their copies, taller and agile, they were used in combat against bulls. When these clashes were banned, the Bulldog seen today as a companion dog, was saved by faithful creators. The reason for this assertion is that interference in crosses that generated the current diminutive size, prevented him playing by himself. An example of this is her nose: facing up, hinders the cooling effect and leads to overheating the animal, besides restricting their energy to mate. Its said perfect physical fighter also not helped with the dogs. The females were not successful in natural births since its crooked legs (excellent to dribble the opponents), prevented his bones dilate enough to provide for the passage of the puppies. His personality is described as playful and affectionate, despite the brave face. quite right, although I know that until the mid-eighteenth century their copies, taller and agile, they were used in combat against bulls. When these clashes were banned, the Bulldog seen today as a companion dog, was saved by faithful creators. The reason for this assertion is that interference in crosses that generated the current diminutive size, prevented him playing by himself. An example of this is her nose: facing up, hinders the cooling effect and leads to overheating the animal, besides restricting their energy to mate. Its said perfect physical fighter also not helped with the dogs. The females were not successful in natural births since its Os cachorros da raça Bulldog Inglês (English Bulldog) têm uma personalidade muito forte, caracterizada pelo seu jeito independente, dócil e preguiçoso. Com um temperamento maravilhoso, este cão reúne diversas qualidades, vamos conhecer o motivo porque a maioria das pessoas sonham em ter um bulldog inglês.

Quem não conhece um bulldog inglês, a primeira vista sente até medo, sua fisionomia pode parecer de um cão bravo, mas não esqueça: “as aparências enganam...” e nesse caso enganam muito, porque a última coisa que um bulldog é, é agressivo

We must remember that behavior is composed of two parts: a genetic and education (management, environment). So let's talk about how good the temperament of a Labrador, parents chosen to match the expected race and receive proper education, without violence, but without excessive pampering.

The Labradors are dogs with enough energy as puppies. This means that they are like children, and if left alone with dangerous objects around, will make "art." As adults, decreased spontaneous physical activity, but do not lose the playfulness and friend.

Dogs are easy to educate for many different activities: company search of game (especially birds and wetlands), guide the blind, therapy dog, dog Assistant (disabled), just that the owner has a little patience and search techniques.

Are definitely not guard dogs. They may bark at the sight of a situation or person outside, but do not attack.

They love to play and are very fond of water. love children and protect them loyally to the end.

links:<http://vidaaauau.wordpress.com/2007/09/11/labrador>
www.dudosobredogs.com
www.seucachorro.com/caes-lobo